

Detail Itinerary

Chitwan Jungle Safari is an exciting activity in holidays in Nepal. Just drive 5 hours to visit Chitwan for a jungle safari tour in Nepal. Chitwan National Park, acknowledged as a UNESCO Natural Heritage Site, is located in southern central Nepal and offers the best jungle safari experience. Actually, it covers 932 sq. km. To the southern side of the national park, it is expanded to the hills of the Siwalik range (600m). While on the northern sector of the park lies in the floodplains of the Reu, Narayani, and Rapti rivers; a flat section of grassland; and lakes. Here, you can have an exclusive experience of spotting various floras and fauna on an elephant back or via jeep or just walking on foot, taking pleasure from the natural settings including deep woods and prosperous grasslands.

The major charm of Chitwan Jungle Safari arranged by Nepal Kailash Trekking is getting a chance to see the One-Horned Rhino and Royal Bengal Tigers. Similarly, you will find out lumbering elephants, python, rhesus monkey, leopards, grey langur, wild cats, crocodile, deer, etc.; vibrantly colored 450 birds of different species like Great Pied Hornbill, Peregrine falcon, Bengal Florican and several more. The park includes subtropical as well as tropical forests. Sal forests, in fact, encircle approximately 70 percent of the park. Leaves of Sal trees are used locally as dishes in festivals and sacred offerings.

The type of weather in this area during the months from March to June, a temperature rises up to 43°C. While February and May will be the top game-viewing period in the year and the autumn months are superb Himalayan. In addition, in winter, between December to January, Chitwan is enjoyable and warm. Here, you may also enjoy a canoe trip on the Rapti or Budhi Rapti rivers which are the boundaries of the National Park. In addition, apart from experiencing adventurous jungle safari, you will also get to see long-established Tharu dance in the evening as a refreshment at Chitwan's resorts. It is executed by a collection of youthful men using the Tharu stick cultural program as well.
